Thirty-Second Sunday in Ordinary Time

Thoughts on Today's Liturgy

Reading 1: 2 Maccabees 7:1-2, 9-14 The King of the world will raise us up to live again forever.

Reading 2: 2 Thessalonians 2:16-3:5 May the Lord encourage your hearts and strengthen them in every good deed and word.

Gospel: Luke 20:27-38 He is not God of the dead, but of the living.

Sacrament of Reconciliation 30 minutes prior to Mass or by appointment

Reflection: Not by Reason or Experience We will all be wed to God—the God who is able to make children out of dust, out of dry bones, out of the bits and pieces of genuine love we are able to scrape up over a lifetime of trying—“for he is God not of the dead, but of the living, for to him all of them are alive.” This is absolutely all Jesus had to say on the subject of resurrection. You can search all four of the gospels and you will find no more teaching on it. What you will find is that in short order he went on to test the waters for himself. He surrendered life as we know it, and when those who loved him came to perfume his body, they could not find him anywhere. When he showed up later, he showed up with a body. He ate fish, broke bread, cooked breakfast. He also walked through locked doors and vanished while people were looking right at him. He was the same but he was different, and because he was both, our futures may turn out to be as astounding as his. I am not trying to convince anyone. How could I? Resurrection cannot be supported by reason any more than it can be supported by experience. All we have are the stories, based on the unreasonable experience of people we never knew—and the choice of whether to believe them or not. . . . Any way you look at it, the choice is basically this: what would you rather be wrong about? Death? Or life? ~~Barbara Brown Taylor, Home By Another Way

Word of Life

“O St. Bakhita, assist all those who are trapped in a state of slavery; Intercede with God on their behalf so that they will be released from their chains of captivity. . . . Provide comfort to survivors of slavery and let them look to you as an example of hope and faith.”

USCCB, “Prayer to St. Josephine Bakhita”
